

Student Trainee Program (6-Week Internship)

Every year, the Quinn Emanuel Zurich office launches a new round of the Quinn Emanuel Zurich Student Trainee Program.

What makes Quinn Emanuel Zurich stand out as an employer is the attention that we give to training our junior lawyers. The Student Trainee Program is designed for law students not only to gain insights into the daily routine of attorneys working for the biggest international dispute resolution law firm in the world, but also to develop a solid foundation to become a successful lawyer. This program may also be the starting point of your own legal career at Quinn Emanuel, as student trainees frequently choose to stay with us as regular trainees after the completion of their university degree.

As a student trainee, you will be part of our team working alongside experienced lawyers in a multitude of our practice areas, such as international arbitration, complex international litigation, banking and finance disputes, white collar, investigations, and sports law.

The Student Trainee Program is a six-week internship. Student trainees are welcome all around the year, also outside the law-school summer break. Participants of the Student Trainee Program are compensated for the time they work with us.

What do you need to apply for the Student Trainee Program?

We welcome applicants who have completed at least five semesters of law school with outstanding academic results, have excellent command of English and German (other languages, such as French and Italian, are a plus), and are eager to learn.
